Ancra International Partners with TAC Enterprises to Produce USAF Cargo Nets

Hawthorne, CA — Ancra International (Hawthorne, CA) is pleased to announce that they have partnered with TAC Enterprises to produce cargo nets for the United States Air Force. This partnership is expected to enhance the manufacturing capabilities of both companies to serve the USAF. To accomplish this, a new facility is being opened in Springfield, OH in close proximity to their Erlanger, KY facility and TAC Enterprises facility in Springfield and will be located at 2130 Progress Drive. Production in this new facility is expected to begin in January 2011.

“Ancra being our neighbor will help the production flow considerably and reduce costs for us,” said Dave Faulkner, TAC Enterprises Communication Manager. By lowering costs, he said the partnership with Ancra will put TAC in a better position to maintain its Air Force contracts and jobs for people with developmental disabilities.

“Ancra is looking forward to working closely with TAC Enterprises, as well as the Springfield area business leaders to establish and grow this facility”, states Greg McCollum, Program Manager and primary liaison with TAC Enterprises.

“Both TAC and Ancra feel this is a viable partnership which can result in increased opportunities for the community which is both companies’ primary mission and focus,” said Cliff Meyer, TAC Enterprises CEO.

Ancra will produce what is referred to as the shell of the cargo net and TAC Enterprises will complete the assembly in their facility prior to shipment.

“Ancra has chosen to keep this business in Ohio, specifically here in Springfield and partner with TAC to better serve the customer and the community. Springfield offers the resources, facilities and location to continue to further Ancra’s relationship with TAC Enterprises and to develop mutually beneficial opportunities for many years to come,” states Tom Leone, Vice President and General Manager for Ancra’s Cargo Systems Division in Erlanger, KY.

“Ancra International welcomes this opportunity and is truly excited for the continued expansion and growth of its Cargo Division, as well as to provide career opportunities to further strengthen and enrich the community of Springfield,” stated Robert Rossato, Ancra’s Director of Global Sales located at Ancra’s Corporate Offices in Hawthorne, CA.

Ancra International was founded in 1969 to serve the cargo handling industry with a complete line of cargo restraint and conveyance equipment for the air, truck, rail and marine markets. Since its inception, Ancra and its’ product line has evolved into an internationally recognized leader in the design, development and manufacture of lightweight on-board cargo handling and restraint systems and components for fixed and rotary-wing commercial and military aircraft.
